Deep-dish deals

• A Midwinter Meeting regular, Chris Stumpf, RDH, of Dodgeville Dental in Dodgeville, Wis., always has at least one slice before leaving Chicago. And she always shops the exhibit hall, leaving this year with stock of the Ultradent Whitening System (booth No. 3811), fluoride treatments and other hygiene products. ■ Whether you come for the deals and stay for the pizza, or vice versa, you end up winning no matter what with the Midwinter Meeting exhibit hall. Deep discounts and other show-specials are standard fare, and today is your final chance this year to stock up on staples or take advantage of introductory opportunities on new products and services.

The choices seem endless. In the Trans America Medical booth (No. 1422), you can find a list of 10 show-special deals on an array of dental instruments. The 40-year old company is attending its 28th Midwinter Meeting.

In booth No. 5105, you can ask Lars Kahre or another Futudent rep about

Recognizing 2018 honorees

■ In recognition of their outstanding contributions to the dental profession, the Chicago Dental Society honored four individuals Thursday for their dedication to academic and scientific excellence; volunteered services and free dental care to underserved patients; and promoting awareness of the impact of oral health on overall health.

Dr. Darryll Beard, Dr. Edwin “Ted” Parks, Prof. Gail Williamson and Dr. Wanda Laszcz were presented with the Cushing, Gordon J. Christensen Lecturer Recognition, and CDS Foundation (CDSF) Vision Award during the opening session of Midwinter Meeting.

“Those involved with the Chicago Dental Society work together for one common goal: To make dentistry better by improving patient treatment through education,” said Dr. Louis Imburgia, CDS Board President.

special Midwinter pricing on the company's EduCam. The ultralight, full-HD 1080p video camera can mount on a loupe or a headmount for precise, hands-free, point-of-view or overhead filming of everything you're seeing and doing. It can magnify two to eight times.

Coltene has special pricing on NiTi HyFlex EDM refills. The NiTi files are available in 21 mm and 25 mm lengths. Salvin has show-special bulk pricing on its OSS xenograft bone graft material in booth No. 1139.

You can save $200 in Chicago on lightweight loupes and the LED DayLite high-def headlight in the Designs for Vision booths, Nos. 2602 and 4421.

You can get free samples of Denta-Glove Ergoform products in booth No. 4840 and take advantage of Ansell's everyday low prices.

It's not just the deals, of course, that make the exhibit hall a major draw. Getting the opportunity to check out the newest advancements in diagnostics, treatment and patient comfort is just as valuable. Among the most interesting this year: Be sure to check out Dex Voice in the KaVo booth (No. 1500).

According to Ryan Hungate, DDS, of Dex Voice, practitioners will never have to take their gloves off again when wanting to review imaging scans. The Amazon Echo/Alexa smart • Above, Jay Younis and Ofelia Garcia of Trans America Medical, booth No. 1422, have show specials on extraction forceps, elevators, a mouth mirror, a Gracey set and more.

speaker lets you control virtually all of your Dexis software via voice command.

Today is your last chance at these opportunities and more, with the exhibit hall set to close at 4 p.m.
