Score big today with show specials, giveaways and other ASM19 deals

■ “Try before you buy” isn't the only big advantage to making both routine and dream purchases through a company's booth in a dental meeting exhibit hall. Another big advantage: Being able to discuss your purchase face-to-face with the people who know more about it than anybody. And then there's perhaps the best advantage of all: “Show Specials.”

Buy one ... two for ... half off ...

Today is the day to take full advantage of the special pricing and other deals that can be found throughout the aisles of the ASM19 exhibit hall. The opportunities seem endless.

To start, be sure to thoroughly search the Dental Industry Association of Canada coupon book for all sorts of big savings with some of the most innovative companies on the exhibit floor. The book is typically filled with 2+1 offers — and more.

In the Designs for Vision booth, No. 630, you can get $200 off when you order both loupes and an LED DayLite. Be sure to also check out the new hands-free infrared technology that can turbocharge your infection control practices.

Another recent technological breakthrough can be experienced in booth No.

A taste of Toronto

■ The Metro Toronto Convention Centre is just steps away from some of the most popular of Toronto's many iconic attractions.

The list of opportunities is tantalizing: international cuisine, unique shopping venues, diverse cultural facilities and events, trails, parks, distinctive architecture and endless top-caliber entertainment. Following are just a few suggestions if you're able to get out and about for a bit (or a bite).

Get a taste of the city

- Wander the eclectic and bohemian Kensington Market for vintage finds, organic coffee, tacos, Jamaican patties, gourmet cheese shops, green grocers and Indian spices.

- Taste a peameal bacon sandwich (with honey mustard) and a butter tart at the 200-year-old St. Lawrence Market.

- Eat your way around the world in Little Italy, Little Portugal, Greektown, Chinatown, Koreatown and Little India, to name just a few locales.

Catch some nice rides

- Ride the 501 "Red Rocket" streetcar along Queen Street from The Beaches in the east to the West End, through the heart of downtown and passing

Registration is accomplished using any recent CT scan of the jaw by selecting on-screen and then tracing three of the patient's teeth or other structures (such as braces or abutments). It's all done in the chair, immediately before surgery. No stent or guide needs to be prepared, and the entire registration process can be completed in about three minutes.

In the Shofu booth (Au-Shaw Dental Productions), No. 1638, dentists, hygienists and dental assistants alike can hold and handle the new and improved EyeSpecial C-III digital camera. Its preprogrammed settings are designed specifically for ease of use in dental applications. Plus, the camera is water-, chemical- and scratch-resistant, and it can be quickly disinfected with a sterilizing towelette.

Brush up on dental history

ODA 150th-anniversary website still accessible

■ Two years ago, in honour of the Ontario Dental Association’s 150th anniversary, the association created a website detailing the fascinating and, sometimes alarming, history of dentistry in Ontario.

Now, as the ODA marks its 152nd year, the site remains active — and as interesting as ever.

Did you know anyone, regardless of training, could call themselves a dentist? Or that it was common for the local blacksmith to yank people’s teeth out? How about that toothpaste used to be made with sugar? You can find all sorts of interesting facts in the evolution of dentistry in Ontario at <https://150.oda.ca>.

When the website launched, then ODA President Dr. Jack McLister said, “For the past 150 years, Ontario dentists have been committed to educating the public on oral hygiene and advocating for access to dental care for everyone in the province. Like Canada, dentistry has evolved and progressed tremendously over that time and the ODA and its members had a defining role in shaping the dental care standards we enjoy today.”

If you haven’t explored the website yet, you’re encouraged to take a few minutes to look back to see just how far the profession and industry have progressed — especially within the context of the almost science-fiction-like advancements that can be seen throughout the ASM19 exhibit hall.

ODA: Seniors' dental plan falls short

Ontario's plan could send seniors into government-run dental facilities for care

■ For years, the Ontario Dental Association has made it clear that it wants to work with the province to make sure Ontarians get the proper dental care they need. The seniors' dental plan described in the recent provincial budget falls short of that on substance and details.

While the ODA believes there should be a dental program for Ontario's low-income seniors, the suggestion from the province appears to be that seniors should be forced to leave their current dentist and travel, sometimes long distances, to get treatment at a government-run institution with a dental team they don't know and who doesn't know their dental and medical history.

The budget also doesn't address the ongoing issue of the severe funding gap in existing public dental care programs. The fact is, there are currently four major programs for vulnerable Ontarians (children, families, people with disabilities, and those with complex medical conditions) and none of them are funded properly.

ODA President Dr. David Stevenson said, "Ontario's dentists have been working hard to find a funding solution with the province. Quite frankly, this government knows dentists are reaching the breaking point and we are disappointed at this missed opportunity."

The ODA is asking the province to work with it to find solutions for all government dental care programs so that we can meet the needs of Ontario's low-income families and seniors in a way that works best for them.

About the ODA

The ODA has been the voluntary professional association for dentists in Ontario since 1867. It represents more than 9,000, or nine in 10, dentists across the province. As Ontario's primary source of information on oral health and the dental profession, the ODA advocates for accessible and sustainable optimal oral health for all Ontarians by working with healthcare professionals, governments, the private sector and the public. It provides the public with dental care tips at www.youroralhealth.ca.
